STARTLING CRICKET

WYATT KNOCKED OUT AND TWO TEST RECORDS

ENGLAND 27 FOR 4 AGAINST 535 FOR 7

Headley 270 Not Out

Kingston, To-day.

England are in a desperate position as the result of yesterday's sensational play in the fourth Test match against the West Indies. At the close of play the tourists, with six wickets in hand, required 358 to save the follow on.

Two Test records were shattered during the day, and Bob Wyatt, the England captain, was knocked out by a blow on the jaw when attempting to avoid a fast rising ball from Martindale in the first over of the tourists' innings. He was immediately rushed to hospital for an x-ray examination.

For The Home Our Birthday Supplement

WELL-KNOWN LOCAL CONTRIBUTORS

On the occasion of its nineteenth anniversary the "China Mail" announced that it would shortly add new features to its reading-matter. To-day it offers the first of these, in the form of a supplement, to the public, in the confident hope that it will enhance both the interest and the value of its pages.

The supplement, which will appear each Saturday, will deal, from every angle, with the things that matter in house and home.

Amongst those who will contribute towards its success are: Mr. A. S. Konya, whose work as an interior decorator and artist is known and esteemed throughout South Africa, and Miss Phyllis Juby, a charming writer on all matters of home interest. Both are well-known as regular contributors to the columns of the "Sunday Herald".

U.S. ADMIRAL TO PAY VISIT TO CANTON

Courtesy Call Before Retirement

AUGUSTA DUE HERE TO-DAY

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Canton, To-day.

Admiral Frank B. Upham, Commander-in-Chief of the American Asiatic Fleet, who left Manila yesterday for Hong Kong, is expected in Canton on Sunday evening. He will arrive in Hong Kong this afternoon aboard the U.S.S. Augusta, his flagship.

While in Hong Kong, Admiral Upham will board his armed yacht, U.S.S. Isobel, for the continuation of his journey to Canton, via the Pearl River. The American visitor will call on various Chinese officials here on Monday and will spend Tuesday in sight-seeing. The visit will end at noon on Wednesday next, when Admiral Upham will return to Hong Kong en route to Shanghai.

STRATOSPHERE DASH HELD UP AT CLEVELAND

OXYGEN SUPPLY RUNS SHORT

Averages 270 m.p.h.

Cleveland, Ohio, To-day.

Wiley Post, who left Los Angeles yesterday morning in an attempt at a stratosphere flight to New York, landed here as his oxygen supply was running out.

Officials state that his speed averaged 340 miles per hour, but a later report stated that the speed was 270 m.p.h.—Reuter.

Captain Wiley Post, the one-eyed Indian flier who circled the globe in record time, was in New York on a mysterious mission on March 2.

The airman, whose effort to make a stratosphere flight from Los Angeles to New York came to grief due to engine trouble, declined to reveal the nature of his mission to newspaper men upon his arrival in New York from Los Angeles.

FOUL PLAY ALLEGED
Captain Post was, in fact, in a belligerent mood. He hinted darkly that "foul play" had brought misfortune to his first attempt to soar across the continent in record time by ascending into the upper air.

DARING HIGHWAY ROBBERY

Pig-Breeder Beaten Unconscious

A daring highway robbery was reported at Kowloon City last night when a Chinese pig-breeder was waylaid and robbed at the South Gate of the Walled City by four men, who beat him to insensibility with short hammers and made off with his canvas belt, which contained $44 in notes and cash.

Yun Po, 48-year-old pig-breeder of No. 68 Sai Tau Village, reports that he left his pig farm at Hok Lo Chuen at about 9.45 p.m. yesterday and proceeded home.

BALANCE OF POWER HAS PROVED A FAILURE

CONSULTATIVE SYSTEM MUST REPLACE IT—SIR J. SIMON

London, To-day.

Sir John Simon, the Foreign Secretary, speaking at Swansea last night said that the defects of the pre-war system of balance of power were burnt into their memories by the events of August, 1914.

There was nothing in that system, he said, to put in the way of the first beginnings of the avalanche. Statesmen had learnt from bitter experience that after the great war there was no such thing as victory, and that everybody was the loser.

They had set themselves to create a world organisation for the express purpose of maintaining and promoting peace and the substitution of a system of consultation for a balance of power. That tremendous conception had in fact produced great results, even though it had not always succeeded.

Referring to the disarmament problem Sir John Simon said there was no doubt that what had been contemplated was that Germany's enforced disarmament would be followed by agreed reductions in the armaments of other states. Britain indeed had reduced her armaments and had now reached the stage beyond which she would not proceed further with such unilateral measure.

BRITAIN'S CATTLE BILL

Australian Premier's Visit Next Week

London, to-day.

The third reading of the Government's cattle bill was carried in the House of Commons yesterday by 118 votes to 29, and later received its first reading in the House of Lords.

The object of the measure is to continue the interest and assistance to the British livestock industry, pending further discussions with overseas interests concerned in the meat import into Great Britain, which it is hoped will lead to a general agreement on a long term policy for the meat industry in the United Kingdom.

It is stated that Zeidis from the Yemen, armed with daggers, attacked the King and Crown Prince but were shot down by the bodyguards.—Reuter.

GOVERNOR GENERAL OF NEW ZEALAND

Tributed On Expiration Of Term Of Office

London, To-day.

The Rt. Hon. Lord Bledisloe, P.C., who left New Zealand for England yesterday after serving for five years as the Governor General, received a remarkable tribute to the popularity which he and his wife had earned.

Commenting on the high success of Lord Bledisloe's term of service, the Times refers to his expert agricultural knowledge, which proved such an asset to the farming community, but says that that alone would not have won the instinctive affection of the New Zealand people. "Even when the depression was at its worst he felt and proclaimed an unquenchable faith in the future of the Dominion, a faith shared by all who know its resources and the sturdy courage of its people.—British Wireless Service.

1,219 ARRESTED AND $1,000,000 IN DRUGS SEIZED

SIX WOMEN CAUGHT IN WASHINGTON

Government Drive

New York, To-day.

The biggest round-up of illegal traders in liquor and narcotics in the history of the United States occurred yesterday when 1,219 persons were arrested, of whom 741 will be charged with the illicit manufacture of liquor, 247 with peddling narcotics, and 26 with counterfeiting.

Six women were arrested in Washington on charges of dealing in narcotics.

The arrested persons include whites, negroes and Chinese.

Altogether $1,000,000 worth of drugs have been seized.—Reuter.

McCARRAN AMENDMENT IS REJECTED

SENATE SAVES THE RELIEF BILL

PREPARES WAY FOR VOTE ON ADMINISTRATION COMPROMISE

Washington, To-day.

The Senate, by 50 votes to 38, yesterday rejected Senator Patrick McCarran's "prevailing wage" amendment to the Relief Bill.

It thus saved the bill and prepared the way for a vote on the Administration's compromise proposals providing that prevailing wages shall be paid only for permanent public building schemes and shall permit the payment of the "security" wage for other work, unless the private scale is thereby endangered.—Reuter.

A Reuter's message of February 22 stated that the first major defeat for the Roosevelt forces in the contest over the Relief Bill occurred when the Senate, by 44 votes to 43, supported organized labour in approving the McCarran amendment, requiring that on emergency public works "the prevailing rate of wages" shall be paid.

The Woman's Page

The Streamlined Face Of 1935

Harmony Is The Dominant Cosmetic Note

Slender, rather pale cheeks, instead of two rosy curves, thin, elegant eyebrows, well-defined, firmly cut lips, long, arched lashes, that is the appearance which women are gradually achieving, and will achieve even more this year.

Beauty experts have called in famous sculptors to model for them what they consider to be the ideal face for the year.

Streamlined is the verdict, and from that the beauty experts will help their clients to attain this new fashion.

After examining the models of those sculptors, one realises that, it's quite possible, without resorting to plastic surgery either, to follow their ideals.

An Up-To-Date Face

You can make your face fashionable, without taking away your individuality, by beauty treatment and by correct make-up.

The first rule, according to the Parisian specialists, is that features must harmonize, harmony being just as essential in an attractive face as in music.

If nature, for example, has started you off with a small, mischievous, snub nose then it is no use adopting Dietrich eyebrows and Dolores del Rio hair with a Kay Francis smile. The results won't fit.

But should your nose be slenderly modelled, and your eyes well placed, then train your eyebrows to an angle—careful plucking and brushing will do that—be very restrained over rouge, choose a fairly vivid lipstick and wear your hair well swept back, off the forehead, in restrained waves or disciplined curls.

With round eyes and a round face, eyebrows, too, should be curved, rouge should be stronger, lipstick less vivid and hair worn very softly dressed.

Blondes, say the specialists, should have blue eyes, so don't "go platinum" if you are born brunette. It isn't in harmony.

Eyelashes are to be longer, so indulge in a good lash-growing cream, or persevere with olive or castor oil, brushed on nightly.

Add a tiny smear of olive oil, or a soft cold cream, to your eyelids always after powdering, for it will give them a heavy "mysterious" look, fashionable for 1935.

Helping The Lashes

Here is another hint, too. Put the oil or cream on your lashes as well, before you use any darkening cosmetic on them.

It will make the mascara go on much more easily and prevent the lashes looking hard or stiff.

Always brush them up, with an old toothbrush or a special one for REGISTERED and PARCEL MAILS are closed 15 minutes earlier than the time given above unless otherwise stated, and where mails are advertised to close at or before 9 a.m. registered and parcel mails are closed at 5 p.m. on the previous day.

the purpose and, when they are long, try an eyelash curler, for special occasions, to achieve the "correct arch."

Very rosy cheeks are no longer smart, so rouge must be restrained. This demands a good, naturally-smooth skin.

Olive oil makes an excellent base and skin food—it's not new because it was popular with the "lovelies" of Greece and Egypt, who cherished their complexions as carefully as we do—and it's an excellent remedy for skins roughened by winds and rain.

I've just been sampling a whole range of beauty products made with a base of olive oil, from a soft liquefying cleansing cream, which works wonders after a fog, to a powder which really does cling.

LONG SKIRTS.

The Art Of Holding Them

DRESSES of greater length carry one back to the time when one at least of every female pair of hands was occupied in holding up skirts. Bags, of course, were more, or less non-existent, except when possessed by Aunts Matilda, but on a wet day when umbrellas were essential, or on shopping occasions, the possession of only one whole hand to deal with the situation required some ingenuity. Even with the ankle-length skirts of to-day mud manages to make itself felt, and it is possible to get extremely wet and muddy ankles while the springs and rivers are making up for dry summer.

The Way To Hold Them

Most women have not the faintest notion how to hold up skirts gracefully. Absence of petticoats would formerly have been held ridiculous, and the old method was to have an extremely noisy silk petticoat with plenty of frills to make a "frou-frou."

But absence of petticoats actually makes things easier, if only with regard to weight. Also, underthings are neat and taut, and dangers which beset a former generation do not now occur. With the fuller skirts the old Parisian method can still be well adopted. Parisians used to take pride in gathering up their skirts on either hand, lifting them a few inches, and then gathering them up in front with one hand. Thus they balanced skirts, an umbrella, and often a large hat with veil and pins. Where skirts are held up from one side they should also be given this little life before being gathered up, as this keeps them far cleaner and prevents them from looking dragged round the figure.

In sitting down, skirts were given a swirl which was considered smart, and "young ladies" and old eat with the swirl to one side of them in what now would seem a stiff position. But, stiffness or not, the present skirts could be improved upon vastly as far as their management is concerned.

Something new under the sun: a tree bark crepe frock in Chinese green worn by June Knight, screen actress. The wide shoulder straps are held in place by jewelled ornaments.

WINTER BEAUTY

Be careful at all times not to overeat. The common fallacy that one should eat more in the winter than in the warmer months of the year is pure nonsense; gorging is never wise, and can lead to bodily harm. The general assumption, too, that one should starve a fever and stuff a cold is downright nonsense. If you clog the system with food during a period when you are suffering from a common cold, the chances are that it will remain with you two or three days longer than if you had eaten intelligently and moderately. At such a time one should get more rest, drink plenty of water, keep in the fresh air as much as possible, and eat very lightly. In all cases where a cold does not respond to this simple treatment, consult your physician. A simple cold may easily become a serious one if permitted to linger.

CAROLINE PAIGE IN COLONY

Cosmetic And Perfume Addition To Aurelia's

MISS ANGELA TO AID IN BEAUTY CULTURE

A news item of particular interest to the women of the Colony is the addition of cosmetics and perfumes by Caroline Paige, who has taken over a section of the Aurelia shop, in Des Voeux Road, beginning April 1.

The section will be exclusively devoted to the marketing of the most up-to-date American and French beauty aids, cosmetics, manicuring necessities etc., also novelties favoured by the fashion leaders of the world that have never before been obtainable anywhere in the Orient.

We are certain that this shop will meet a long felt need, as every woman in Hong Kong can now have expert advice without the slightest obligation concerning not only the proper selection of cosmetic shades for her particular type, but also a free analysis of the skin and its requirements.

You will also be surprised at the range of prices you will have to choose from, and you will now be able to secure the finest American cosmetics and beauty aids at prices that will fit even the most modest budget.

Licensed Graduate Operator

A special feature of further interest is that Caroline Paige has secured, for a limited time only, the assistance of Miss Angela, who is a licensed graduate operator of beauty culture from the Nairmont Hotel, San Francisco, and who has also been connected with the New York shop of Elizabeth Arden and Dorothy Gray. Miss Angela will give demonstrations and facials absolutely free of charge and will also give advice as to the selection of the correct shades of cosmetics to suit each individual type.

We urge you to take advantage of this offer and call in at the Caroline Paige shop to see for yourself how easy it is nowadays to secure that "just right" making, and to take the opportunity of being given a free facial and expert advice by an expert.

Here is a staff artist's impression of Shirley Temple, the extraordinary child star of Fox Film's "Bright Eyes." In her latest picture, Shirley is the mascot of an airport, and her bright eyes are the beacon lights to every pilot on the field.

BRIDGE NOTES

WHEN CHARITY IS WISE

by Ely Culbertson.

Among the many plays designed to prevent one's opponents from making full use of their entries a great majority are the conventional entry-killing plays, which remove high cards from an opponent's hand before the right to lead is important to him. The timing of the play at Contract Bridge is such that very often an entry is not valuable to one opponent early in the hand, whereas after several rounds he could use an entry to great advantage—either because a suit he holds has by this time become established, or because his partner is now able to ruff another suit, or for a variety of other reasons.

Most players are familiar with the means by which high cards are removed from the opponents' hands before they become dangerous, but there are other cases in which it is impossible to strip the opponents of high cards, so that other means must be taken to cut their lines of communication.

In the following beautiful hand the declarer is forced to anticipate by several moves a brilliant line of defence which is planned against him; he must foresee the fact that the success of this defence depends on the existence of an entry card in the hand of one adversary; and finally, by a counter move, he must cut off all chance of his opponents' transferring the lead to the only hand which could make the play defeat him.

The rarity of declarers who are able to rise to such a situation is indicated by the fact that when a hand like this was submitted recently to half a dozen of the best known experts not one of them was able to find the correct technique.

In the Culbertson system of play the general principle underlying this hand has given birth to an entire group of similar entry-killing plays, of which is given below, is still one of the most interesting.

In the bidding North and South wisely chose to sacrifice, being confident that they cannot be heavily set, and seeing no hope of defeating a vulnerable game. The final contract is four spades doubled, against which West opens the diamond eight. This is won by East's Ace and the Queen returned, which falls to South's King. A club is now played to the King and a small spade led, on which East properly plays the ten, South win-

SIAM'S PROTEST TO CHINA

Question Of Schools Not Replied To

No formal reply has as yet been received by the Chinese Government to the protest made to the Siamese Government through the Siamese Minister in Tokyo regarding the restrictions of the number of Chinese schools in Siam as from April 1. It is stated that the Siamese authorities are to close down all the Chinese schools and force Chinese residents to send their children to Siamese institutions. The Chinese Government is to lodge another protest.

ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY

Malayan Government's Support

The Governments of the Straits Settlements and Federated Malay States have resumed their financial support of the Malayan branch of the Royal Asiatic Society. In the case of the F.M.S., (states the Society's annual report) the grant is $500 for three years. The S.S. agreed to provide a similar sum, initially for two years. The membership roll of the Society at the end of the year included 567 names compared with 597 at the end of 1933.

100-YEAR-OLD BRIDEGROOM

Mujo Suljkanovitch, of Zvornika, Belgrade, has celebrated his 100th birthday by getting married—for the fourth time.

His bride is a 60-year-old widow. As a boy he went to school with her mother!

South is now too wise to think that the two remaining spades will break. East's double was more than likely based upon the A J 10 of trumps and it seems necessary to return to Dummy and lead through the Ace again. But as the hand was originally played, South was aware that East, a very brilliant player who ranks among the country's finest, would win with his spade Ace and put his partner in with a heart to return a club. East could ruff the club and thus defeat the contract.

A wise South must foresee this possibility. He must realise that East, having bid diamonds, supported hearts and doubled spades, can hold at most two clubs. It is suicidal therefore to allow West to get the lead after East's last club is gone. But a simple solution to this difficulty is to allow West to lead before East is in a position to ruff clubs. South's next play is therefore his singleton heart!

West can win this trick, but the lead does him no whit of good. He can return a club in the hope that East had a singleton, but this is won in Dummy and East must follow, whereupon a spade is led. East puts up the Ace, and now when he leads a small heart South ruffs and captures the Jack of spades with his King before there is any danger of its winning a trick.

By means of this play South succeeds in losing only one spade, one heart and one diamond, and the contract of four spades, which was intended as a sacrifice, instead proves to be good for a doubled bag.

Cinema Notes

"BRIGHT EYES"—KING'S THEATRE

Shirley Temple, the wonder child star, again shines in her latest starring vehicle in Fox's "Bright Eyes." She is uncannily clever, but remains winsome, childish, and charming.

There is the new 8-year-old Jane Withers, who gives a whirlwind performance as the villainess in Shirley's life, the spoiled daughter of the household where Shirley's mother is a maid.

Lois Wilson makes a sympathetic and understanding mother, and Shirley is glad to have her favorite leading man, Jimmie Dunn, as her aviator pal, who befriends her when her father is killed in the service.

The story tugs at your heart-strings and there is the usual quota of smiles, tears, and even a little thrill when our lovely heroine descends in a parachute from the disabled aeroplane.

"CLEOPATRA"—ALHAMBRA AND CENTRAL THEATRES

The story of the life and love of Egypt's most famous Queen, Cleopatra, furnished the romantic theme for Cecil B. De Mille's latest photographic triumph, entitled "Cleopatra," which is being shown simultaneously at the Alhambra and Central Theatres.

De Mille's "Cleopatra" is the heart-touching romance of the Siren of the Nile and Mark Antony, most gallant of all Romans. Set against a background of unparalleled splendour, with Rome and Egypt shown in all their beauty and power, the world's greatest love story is unfolded.

The film has a splendid supporting cast, including Ignatius Foy, Joseph Schildkraut, C. Aubrey Smith, Gertrude Michael, Irving Pichel, Claudia Dell, Edwin Maxwell and Harry Beresford.

It is interesting to note that there are several old-time stars appearing in this film. Ten or fifteen years ago they could have filled any theatre to capacity and their combined salaries would have reached beyond the million mark. Foremost among them are William Farnum, Bryant Washburn, Mary MacLaren, Jack Mulhall and Robert Warwick.

"A WICKED WOMAN"—QUEEN'S THEATRE

Mady Christians, the beautiful Viennese stage and screen star, is featured in her first American picture, M. G. M.'s "A Wicked Woman."

The picture, a dramatic characterisation of a woman's soul shows the glamorous star of "The Waltz Dream" as a modern American woman, struggling to protect her loved ones, while she confines herself in the shadow of a fearful past. Based on the story by Anne Austin, it gives Miss Christians a role that covers every human emotion. Comedy interludes are woven into the amazing dramatic plot and there is also a sensational courtroom denouement.

Jean Parker is engaging and still powerfully dramatic as the wayward daughter, and William Henry injects, both comedy and drama as the youthful reporter-tycoon, extends the utmost in luxury performance as the newspaper editor, choose—and why?

"CONVENTION CITY"—ORIENTAL THEATRE

"Convention City," the first National picture, now at the Paramount's current offering, Oriental Theatre, is a lively satire on the doings of business men at a convention with their wives. A long way off. They get into more long tangles than they can get out of. Amazing results occur when hood by plunging into the jungle. Covered by Laughton, scenes.

A large and talented cast of star players are in the picture, which is his home and trading headed by Joan Blondell as a quipster vamp who gets every one into trouble. Adolphe Menjou, Mary Astor, Dick Powell, Guy, in the rendezvous of a broken ruler, nevertheless fights with all her womanly instincts to redeem Mitchell and Gordon Westcott, member of Laughton's band.

James Dunn and Shirley Temple are again together in "Bright Eyes," which is showing at the King's Theatre to-day.

TESTING ELECTRIC LIGHT BULBS

'Electric Eye' Theory Employed

The theory of the "electric eye," employed by astronomers to measure the distances between planets, has found a new and useful application in University of Wisconsin laboratories in testing efficiency of electrical merchandise.

The University Standards laboratory has undertaken a specific study into merits of light bulbs, electric wiring, neon signs, water heaters and other products. Tests were made to ascertain whether or not the consumer in the end pays more for a cheap light bulb than for a more expensive type.

The photo-electric cell is utilized in the process to measure the light units, or lumens, given by each bulb. A perfect light bulb under the laboratory's standard, yields 650 lumens a watt of power consumed.

Many of those tested, the scientists reported, gave only 7 to 12 lumens a watt, the remaining energy having been converted into wasted heat and invisible ultraviolet rays.

MYSTERIOUS NOISE OVER PHONE

Police Discover Pup Eating Wire

A New York telephone operator's switchboard flashed mysteriously at three o'clock in the morning. Strange sounds came over the wire. The operator, alarmed, summoned the police. Seven radio cars and 14 policemen dashed to the Koppelman home in Carrollton, from which the call had come.

Inside the house they found Trix, a bull-mastiff puppy, innocently chewing the telephone wire. He had pulled off the receiver and called the exchange.

"SISTERS UNDER THE SKIN"—STAR THEATRE

Love versus luxury is the dilemma that confronts Ells Landi in "Sisters Under the Skin," a Columbia release, now showing at the Star Theatre.

Joseph Schildkraut, as a young and tempestuous composer, offers Cavatina (Haff. Op. 85) Melody in F (Rubinstein) My Sweetheart when a Boy (Morgan, arr. W. H. Merry Widow (Lehar) Song—The Vagabond King—Love for Sale (Prinl)

"JUNGLE TRAP"—MAJESTIC THEATRE

A drama of the Malay jungle, National picture, now at the Paramount's current offering, Oriental Theatre, is a lively satire on the doings of business men at a convention with their wives. A long way off. They get into more long tangles than they can get out of. Amazing results occur when hood by plunging into the jungle. Covered by Laughton, scenes.

ATHLETIC AND CLUB FAVOURED

SENIOR SHIELD SEMI-FINAL GAMES

KOWLOON MAY SHOCK THE FUSILIERS

THE scene of many of the Club's most sensational victories, including the decisive defeat of South China "A" a fortnight ago, Caroline Hill will this afternoon witness a titanic struggle between the Police and the Club in the semi-final of the Senior Shield, while at 2.30 p.m., the Navy, holders of the Junior Shield, clash with the Royal Engineers who won by 3 goals to 1 last week in the Second Division.

To-morrow afternoon the Athletic, favourites for this year's Senior Shield title, will battle with South China "B." This clash is likely to produce the best football for both teams are very fast and play good football.

FINCHER AND MANNERS SHOULD REACH FINAL

In Brothers Recover Well After Losing First Set

LEE "PLAYS BALL" WITH SHUTE

Teddy Fincher, the K. C. C. champion, and Capt. Errol Manners, probably the Navy's best player, are likely to make their presence felt in the Colony's Lawn Tennis Doubles Championship, which has been won for the last 10 years by the Rumjahn cousins.

Yesterday they did as they liked with F. H. Kwok and S. W. Liang, a very promising Chinese R. C. partnership, to enter the Semi-Final Round. They are almost certain to reach the Final, which would be the K.C.C. player's fourth in succession.

Kept on the base-line for long periods, the Chinese pair were never given a chance to be in a challenging position. They were swept off their feet in the first set, despite Liang's steadiness, and secured their four games in the second set owing to a bad lapse on the part of Manners, who was attempting to force the pace.

In Brothers Recover

The In brothers could do nothing right in their first set against Wong Fuk Nam and Ho Hin Kwan, but once they had settled down a sustained net attack saw them take the next two sets for the loss of only three games. The tall left hander was again the more aggressive of the two, and his fine volleying was mainly responsible for their win.

DECIDING CLASH FOR CAER CLARK CUP

ST. ANDREW'S STRONG BID FOR HONOURS

(By "STICKS")

TREMENDOUS interest is likely to be shown at King's Park this afternoon when Mrs. White (Miss M. Woolley) and her forwards will attempt to break through the stolid defence of the Hong Kong Ladies to give the St. Andrew's Ladies their first championship success in the history of the Caer Clark Cup hockey series, the 1934-5 season of which concludes with to-day's play-off for the title.

TO-MORROW'S INTERNATIONAL HOCKEY TRIAL

ENGLAND TO MEET IRELAND

WELL BALANCED SIDES FOR SHUMSHUPO

The final English International hockey trial will take place to-morrow morning on the East Lancashire Regiment's ground at Shumshupo when the Probable eleven will meet a Probable Irish eleven, commencing at 10.15 a.m.

The Irish team is fairly strong, and includes such well-known hockey personalities as P. L. Lascelles, of H.M.S. Hermes, who, it is hoped, will play for them if his duties do not interfere. Lt. Ravenhill and Lt. Pearce, of the H.K.S.R.A. and Lt. Cotter, of the Lincoln.

Both teams are fairly well balanced, and an exciting encounter should ensue.

The teams are:—

England Probables:—F. Fowler (Y.M.C.A.); Cox (East Lanes) and E. V. Reed (Club); Parker (Police); W. A. Reed (Club) and Lt. Williams (East Lanes); Lt. Robinson (East Lanes); Lt. Garthwaite (H.K.S.R.A.); W. O. Senof (A.E.C.); Lt. Dawson (East Lanes) and Driver (East Lanes).

Ireland Probables:—A. E. Woolley (H.M.S. Suffolk); Cpl. Kennedy (E. Lanes) and L/Opl. Dinellon (E. Lanes); L/Opl. Murphy (E. Lanes); Lt. Ravenhill (H.K.S.R.A.) and Lt. Cotter (Lincoln); Cpl. Henney (E. Lanes); Pte. Gamble (E. Lanes); Lt. Pearce (H.K.S.R.A.); Pte. L. Lastell (H.M.S. Hermes) or A. N. O'Neil, and Pte. Noon (E. Lanes).

Both sides are at full strength, and a great exhibition is anticipated, especially by the defences. The result of the game will depend to a great extent upon the intermediate lines.

The Saints, who are making their strongest challenge since the inception of the tournament, have not yet finally decided upon the formation of their defence, but in the present circumstances, it would be most unwise to revert back to the two back and goal-keeper defence, after having proved that their three-back game is just as effective, if not more so.

The game commences at 8 p.m. on the Y.M.C.A. ground, and the teams are:—

St. Andrew's:—L. Jorge, E. Landolt and G. White; P. Everest, J. Wong and I. Woolley; P. Wong, I. Gittins, Mrs. G. White, P. Gittins and M. Churn.

Hong Kong:—B. Hanco; E. M. Gray and E. Hebling; C. Ferguson, N. McKenna and J. Smalley; W. Marsh, J. Daniel, Mrs. Harrop, Mrs. Moutrie and A. Jacka.

MURRAYFIELD CLASH THIS AFTERNOON

IRELAND LEADING TABLE AT PRESENT

SCOTS MAKE THREE CHANGES

(By "REFEREE")

THE climax to the 1934-5 International Rugby season will take place at Murrayfield this afternoon when Scotland entertain England, the holders, in their 57th encounter in the historic "Calcutta Cup" series. The result of this match will decide the championship.

Many of those interested in the clash between Scotland and England may wonder why the trophy awarded to the winners is known as the "Calcutta Cup."

It was presented by the Calcutta Football Club, on their disbandment in 1873, when the balance of the funds remaining was devoted to the purchase of a challenge cup to be competed for annually by the English and Scottish Rugby Football Unions.

The idea was suggested by their founder and Secretary, G. A. Rothney, who died about 10 years ago. The cup is of silver, and, being of Indian workmanship, the design is elaborate and striking.

During the last 10 years, Scotland have won the Calcutta Cup on six occasions, England three times and one encounter was scoreless.

The most overwhelming defeat was sustained by Scotland—in the 1924 season, when they lost by 19 points to nil.

SAINTS BEAT SUFFOLK IN MAMAK GAME

All Five Goals Scored In First Half

HAMSON AGAIN OUTSTANDING

(By "STICKS")

After scoring first, the Suffolk were defeated by the St. Andrew's Club by the odd goal in five, all of which were scored in the first half, in a fast Mamak Hockey encounter at King's Park yesterday.

Guest, in the Saints' goal, was not as steady as usual, and, although he stopped many hard shots the two goals that were scored against him could have been stopped.

Broadbridge and White, the full-backs, were prominent throughout keeping out the numerous swift attempts of the opposing forwards. Pullman, inside-right, and Holmes, inside-left, gave the most trouble, the other three forwards being well looked after by the intermediate line.

Hamson played an outstanding game at centre-half stopping Kirk, the opposing leader; he however, played a much slower game than usual. His wing halves, MacNider and Selk, played a good spoiling game, the latter having a big advantage in speed.

The forwards were again ragged and most of their attacks were gobs efforts, most of which never penetrated the sound naval defence.

LEE Tin-sang, the Interport and petition last Sunday, when the Referee gave the above-mentioned marching orders.

This is the second time this season that Lee Tin-sang has been given marching orders, by a Colony referee, the first occasion being the First Division clash between "G.A. Athletic" and South China "A" at Caroline Hill. He was cautioned on that occasion.

HONG KONG, SATURDAY, MARCH 16, 1935

Introducing...

THE MARCH PARTY

IS YOUR BIRTHDAY IN MARCH TOO? The nicest, perhaps, of all birthday affairs is the tea party. So cosy in March, so cordial and withal so little trouble. The table exquisitely set, the gleaming fire, the china and glass perfectly arranged on delicate cloth, flowers to add their scent and charm—and your very best friends. The food may be simple; tiny muffins, some of them jam filled, sandwiches, small cakes, and bonbons with the fragrant tea.

Or the birthday luncheon that may be so smart without entailing a great deal of expense and trouble. Let novelty and smart simplicity be the keynote of the table scheme. There are so many casual ways of arranging the table with lovely lines. Lemons, with their leaves, shaped in pyramids on silver bowls might give an original note of great character.

If the party be a bridge luncheon with a group of woman friends, a heart salad platter will be most attractive. Arrange three nests of lettuce leaves in heart shape on each plate; in one arrange a hearty salad—chicken, lobster, tuna fish or ham; in the second nest a vegetable salad; and the third a fruit salad, which takes the place of dessert, and which should be topped with whipped cream dressing. Mayonnaise or boiled dressing is most appropriate for the other salads. Garnish the platter with beet slices cut in hatchet or heart shapes, using sliced maraschino cherries on the fruit salad. Small buttered hot rolls and coffee accompany the salad platters.

Such a refreshment is quite appropriate top for an evening party.

And if it is an evening party, and your guests are quick thinkers, here's a new game called "Book Reviews," a sort of "Consequences," only much funnier.

You start off on your slips of paper by writing the name of the book reviewed, then fold it and pass it on to the next player who supplies the name of the author, while the next three give names of various reviewers and their comments. Such a result might occur: "Jemima Puddle-duck," written by Dean Inge.

This book should find a prominent place on every young girl's bookshelf," writes Herr Hitler.

"An invaluable handbook for the keen sportsman, there is never a dull moment," says Mickey Mouse.

DECORATING THE BEDROOM

(By A. S. KONYA)

BEDROOMS have always been irresistible to painters and print makers, but I would not encourage the habit which was a common practice in America a few years back. The American housewife, finding an old English engraving showing an elaborate Tudor or Elizabethan bedroom, or a French print depicting a bedroom scene of the most magnificent type, would call in her interior decorator and exclaim: "I want a bedroom like this!" The interior decorator, being a good business man, did one bigger and better; and that is how many of those pseudo-French-English and Spanish interiors originated, elaborately photographed and described by society periodicals.

Simplicity should always be the keynote of decoration, and one cannot emphasise enough that the utilitarian consideration should come first of all. Light, air and spaciousness should be the first principle. Bedrooms should get the morning sun, because nothing is more pleasing than to start the day's work with a cheerful disposition. Walls should be of pleasant and cheerful colours, and that applies to curtains too. Walls should be painted in oil colours, or washable wallpapers used. Furniture should be of light coloured woods to avoid sombreness, though a man's bedroom can be more subdued in tone.

The greatest mistake is the buying of the old-fashioned standard form of bedroom suite, with its hideous wardrobe blocking up the room, and the forbidding washstand. The fact is that what one needs is not a bedroom suite, but the single pieces which correspond to one's requirements. Storing clothes is generally far more adequately and economically achieved by means of a well-thought-out accommodation in the form of built-in cupboards. Such equipment is certainly cheaper to provide in the first place than loose furniture, and it does not require so much attention. Moreover, it is possible in built-in cupboards to get a greater depth for hanging space and shelves than is practicable with the ordinary wardrobe.

The principal loose furniture necessary in a bedroom is some form of a chest of drawers, and this can be as attractive in appearance as anything in the house. If necessary, it may be made to serve as a dressing-table, so that only a bed and chair are needed to complete the equipment of the room. The old conventional washstand has disappeared from an up-to-date bedroom, having given place to a simple and severely utilitarian fixture with a hot and cold water supply.

The bed of yesterday, usually the main and most decorative feature of the room, has undergone a tremendous change. It is no more considered necessary to place beds in any prominent position. As the elaborate head-and-foot-board has disappeared, the bed has become a strictly utilitarian piece of furniture. It may still be elaborate only in small supplementary furniture such as the reading stand and breakfast table. In the latest type of bedroom, the bed becomes a sort of low couch without any foot or head-board, its severe simplicity only broken with one or two casually placed cushions.

The Nicest way—

RICE — WHY NOT?

Devilled Egg Canapes served on croutons of bread.

HAVE you heard those words of wisdom — eat the food indigenous to the country—?

The Chinese make rice their staple food and seem to get a lot of fun out of it. And, believe me, its a sturdy background for making so many savoury dishes at a comparatively low cost. As a food it abounds in energy and fuel, and you have the basis for endless combinations. No work in preparation, no waste, and instead of shrinking with cooking it swells up to two or three times its volume.

The blending of flavours in the cheese-peanut loaf is most intriguing, and the rice and tomato croquettes, served with a vegetable soup, a green vegetable salad, and a sturdy dessert, like apple dumplings, will see you through.

Here are the details:

Meatless Rice Loaf

1 cup cooked rice
1 egg
2 tablespoons chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup crushed peanuts
1 cup cottage cheese
1 tablespoon fat
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Mix all ingredients well and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) in a loaf pan, for about 30 minutes. Six servings. Serve plain, or with tomato, or cream sauce. A thin sauce with a little grated cheese would be good.

Rice and Tomato Croquettes

1/2 cup rice (raw)
1/2 cup brown stock
2 cups canned tomatoes
1 sliced onion
1 sliced carrot
1 sprig parsley

1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cloves
1/4 teaspoon pepper-corns
1 teaspoon sugar
1 egg slightly beaten
1/4 cup grated cheese
1 tablespoon butter
Dash of red pepper

Wash rice and steam it in stock until all is absorbed (water with a bouillon cube will do, or the same amount of canned consommé undiluted). Cook tomatoes for 20 minutes with vegetables and seasonings. Rub through a strainer, add to rice and simmer till rice is soft. Remove from fire and add egg, cheese, butter and red pepper. Spread on plate to cool. Shape into cylinder or cones, egg and crumb, fry in deep fat till brown and drain. Eight medium croquettes.

—And For Breakfast

Shredded wheat and crisp rice and corn flakes will have a new zest if alternated with hot rice—an excellent cereal variation. Serve with cream and white or maple sugar; or with stewed fruits with plenty of juice. Rice cakes perform the same service for flapjacks and waffles and have a delightful crispness and flavour of their own.

—And A Rich Relation

Men still order cold rice pudding with raisins when they are away from home and can have whatever they want. But here is one glamorous variation:

Glorified Rice

2 cups boiled rice
1 cup pineapple
1 cup heavy cream
24 marshmallows
1 cup chopped apple
1/4 cup sugar

Rice must not be mushy. Mix all ingredients (which are cut in small pieces), except cream, and let stand in refrigerator for an hour. Fold in whipped cream just before serving and garnish with candied cherries, canned fruit, quarters of oranges or sliced bananas. Six servings.

Devilled Egg Canapes

1 hard boiled egg
Anchovy paste
Minced parsley
Mayonnaise to moisten
3 fried croutons
Paprika to taste

Shell egg and remove a thin slice from each end. Cut in three thick slices. Remove yolk and pound to a paste with mayonnaise, minced parsley and anchovy paste, then rub through a sieve. Place a ring of egg-white in each crouton. Place yolk mixture on centre of each. Top with a dust of paprika, or with a picked prawn, or slice of stuffed olive. Arrange on flat glass or silver dish, lined with sprigs of parsley. Enough for three.

BECAUSE of the conditions of modern life practically every woman should do some exercises every day. Adapted carefully to individual requirements, they help to develop a clear and healthful skin, poise and grace of movement. They also teach us perfect relaxation—the secret of a long youth.

Life is a much more vital thing when you are fit; and health is the greatest beautifier in the world.

If you ever feel tired and nervy and listless, make up your mind to spare 10 minutes at night for special exercises, and so face the challenge of the day's work in health.

But remember, it is through physical rhythm that the body learns poise and repose; so whatever exercise you are doing, avoid over-exertion. And if, after a few days, you do not enjoy your exercises, you can be sure they are not doing you any good. Your breathing must come easily, deep and untroubled; for you cannot relax feeling puffed and exhausted.

Try beginning with this one:

Lie flat on your back, both arms stretched above your head. Lift the arms slowly until they are sloped backwards at full stretch, breathing deeply at the same time. Drop the arms, and slowly release the breath. Stretch the legs in the same way, being careful not to raise them too high, and paying great attention to the breathing. Repeat these two movements alternately seven times, and then rest. If you are overtired, this will make you sleep.

Paris calling

— and Hong Kong Responds with Spring Silhouettes and Gay Colours

IS it the Spring that brings the clothes, or the clothes that bring the Spring? There is certainly a lilt about the local shop-windows that makes you want to smile. The clothes are gay and the lines just right for Spring. Some of the hats are no more than a brim and a bird, and dresses are slit at the hem, and big, bright buttons, curled feathers, and crisp neck-lines!

Visiting one of the shops yesterday morning I saw a particularly lovely evening dress with that clever individual air that made it a model—not just a dress. A heavy silk crepe with a long panel fall from the waist; diamante straps were striking above the deep bishop purple.

Then I saw the new vogue for lace—the evening frock with the train, subtly suggesting something of long ago. This was a simple grace with just one touch of daring in the green velvet flower that clung to the beige lace at the waist.

There was an afternoon frock with a nigger brown bodice gathered with a broad band at the waist, drawing attention to its smart simplicity; the skirt and elbow-length sleeves were beige of the same material. Another was powder blue silk crepe with touches of deep blue velvet—a lovely combination. Its long square neck was effective, and a small pleated frill rested lightly on the shoulder. The fall was elegantly long with only a slight slit at the hem. The jacket to match was smart too with a deep velvet collar, and little buttons above winged points. Imagine those two together over egg-shell china and light conversation!

A navy linen jacket and belt above a white linen skirt made me long for real Spring mornings. Navy blue is the favourite colour this Spring—but the real chic came with two scarlet yarn pom-poms at the neck and at the belt! There was youth and life in that delightful little creation.

Little red feathers, beige belts and light coloured accessories are favourites. And for evenings the colours are pink, duck-egg green, primrose yellow, and shades of light blue.

I saw some hats too. A bright vermillion straw with just the right, neat tilt—a good beginning for the season. Then a shell-pink material hat with a real silky tassel and a funny crooked peak falling beneath it.

There's joy in store for you, even in Hong Kong!

HOW TO do things

HERE is something clever and original for your supper table—a bowl of anemones, vivid blossoms tucked in damp fern or moss. Or a lily pond in a black glass bowl, with the flowers floating among real leaves.

This is the simple way of them. Have you some ends left over from your decorative coloured candles? Well, spread a newspaper on the table and then collect the materials.

You'll need a small saucepan, a bowl of cold water, a dessert spoon, several candle ends (or whole candles if you have them to spare)—the colours you like best, and a tube of black water-colour paint. Finish making the flowers of one colour, and clean the pan before using another.

First, melt the wax in the pan over a fire or on the gas-ring. Then take a spoonful of wax and pour it gently into the water, where it sets into a roundish disc—easily shaped into a petal. Leave the wax in the water for about ten seconds, putting your fingers gently underneath to test when it is slightly hardened, then lift it out and shape into a petal. Reheat the wax and make another petal, joining it to the first at the base as you shape it. For the anemone make five. There is no need to hurry, as the wax will stay soft and is workable for several minutes. See that the petals are dry as possible before painting the centre black. Make a few buds, too, with curled petals in a sheath of green.

Let the wax set hard before arranging the flowers; if they are anemones they would look well in their moss bed in a simple brown earthenware bowl.

It is not easy for us to gain a clear idea of what the world is like for a very young child, just because it is so different from our own. But by listening patiently to the talk of even little children, and watching them, with the one purpose of understanding them, we can enter into their thoughts and see their pictures.

With the infant, though, we have not even the help of halting speech. It needs a far closer study and a keener leap of the imagination. But because the babe is dumb we cannot assume it has no mind. The youngest baby responds to the touch of the mother's breast and arms long before he has learned to see them. The most real things in those days are the things which can be touched, and the child has to learn slowly that a particular appearance goes along with a certain sort of touch. Even at a year and a half a child may try to take up a sunbeam off the floor.

Hearing is the least developing of the senses at birth; but between the second and fourth months, most children become very sensitive to different tones of voice, and may be profoundly affected by them. It may make a great difference to his nervous health whether he is surrounded by soft encouraging voices and quiet steps, or harsh and shrill tones.

His skill in movements soon gives him much delight and interest—see the two-months baby kicking in his bath; the nine-months cooing and gurgling as he makes sound experiments.

It is through these experiences that the baby's mind grows.

Do Your Eyes Sparkle? — Some Subtle Ways of Evening Make-up

Eyebrows that are already dark enough should be brushed with the tiniest amount of brilliantine. Eye-Shadow

And what entrancing things this will do for your eyes! A subtle way of throwing light into the eyes is to use a shadow shot with gold or silver: gold for the brunette and silver for the blonde. These can be had in a variety of shades, a lovely one too, especially for fair women, is mauve. It should be applied with a camel hair brush. Begin near the lashes very, very lightly; and shade gradually away over the lid until no edge is left. The darkest part should be near the lashes, and then fading away toward the brows. Lashes

They can be made beautifully silky with mascara. Take a little on your brush, and brush the lashes upward and the ones at the outer edge outward. If the lashes stick together a little comb can be used to make each lash stand on its own legs. A navy-blue is often more attractive for the evening than a black.

A final touch of eye make-up, to make the evening eyes look larger, is to put the smallest dot of rouge on an orange-stick and place it in the inner corner of the eye.

Evening Powder Must be so carefully chosen! Artificial light requires something glowing like peach or rose tones, rather than the fawny shades. Much the same applies to the entire make-up; the pinky shades give more life and radiance than the orange.

One of the few times when a more orangy make-up is attractive for evening is when wearing white, in which case a darkish powder would help to give a slightly sun-tan effect.

The colour must be softly toned down to harmonise with shaded lights and subtle perfumes.

WE would do well to begin our Diary in the evening: in the morning a woman can be well-groomed and neat, in the afternoon soignée, but in the evening she must bloom. Her hair must shine, her eyes sparkle and her shoulders gleam.

So much more can be done in the evening than in the day. A stronger make-up is definitely becoming; rouge may be a tint brighter, the lips more vivid, and eyeshadow deeper.

Do You Use Your Eyes?

Do they sparkle and look twice as big as they really are? Eye make-up is the most difficult of all to apply; but after a little private practice it's fun to do, because nothing improves one's looks more than beautiful eyes.

We must first pay attention to the eye-brows, since brows too thick and close so easily, overshadow the eyes and take away from their size and colour. A thin, hard line is to be avoided; the curve of the eye-brows must be their own, but it should be a neat, tidy curve like a young moon, with no straggling, untidy hairs. Don't be too eager when you pluck; grasp one hair firmly in the tweezers and pull gently at first. Then, when you feel the hair move, pull sharply and out it will come, root and all. Dab afterwards with peroxide, and if you rub the skin with a menthol cone before starting to pluck you will not feel any discomfort.

A little mascara tints them darker if necessary; but brush the hairs the wrong way, so that the skin underneath is not marked, then stroke them into shape with a dry, clean brush or your finger.

Diplomatic Candour

There is a well known story of a diplomatist who explained his reputation for a more than Machiavellian finesse by saying that what he had done was to tell the exact truth about his intentions, leaving it to his diplomatic conferees to invent all the ingenious variations suggested by their own imaginations. It is to be feared that any modern imitator of the same policy would have a similar experience, — witness the sensational explanations of Herr Hitler's cold, said to have been caught during a visit to the Saarland. After all the Fuehrer is a human being, and any man who drives about without a hat in the middle of winter may quite easily catch a cold. Even if it was a "diplomatic indisposition" which is a recognised form of polite postponement, it would appear to have had for its motive merely the publication of the fact that everybody knows, and that has been the subject of discussion between the British and the French Foreign Offices for months, that in disregard of the Versailles Treaty Germany has built and trained an air-force which is capable of doing a great deal of damage by way of reprisal for any attack or invasion. If the announcement is inaccurate in any respect, the War Departments of the two countries have all the information required to check the figures. Why then all this to-do about the official statement?

There is something so artificial about these negotiations for one more defensive pact that one can only conclude that the real subject of the discussions that are to take place when the Fuehrer's cold is better on the 24th current is the resumption of membership of the League. It is very difficult to see anything solid about the proposed addition to the Locarno Treaty, by which we are already pledged to protect the Franco-German boundary against aggression by the armed forces of either country. Nobody supposed that such an attack would be made before both were provided with an air-force, or that either would forbear to use that force out of sympathy with the enemy. The mischief was that although "Locarno" pledged Great Britain to more than public opinion was ready to welcome, it came too late to produce the much-taken-of "Locarno spirit". Only a few weeks ago the French Government asked for an official assurance that we were prepared to carry out its provisions.

If the new announcement of German preparedness added nothing to the information available, why are we told that it has aroused indignation in France? The explanation is that France makes a distinction between facts and officially recognised facts. The British policy has been to take the line that the restrictions of Versailles were of only temporary validity, even though there no express limitation; that no country could be expected to remain defenceless for ever; and that the best way to promote resettlement was to waive the restrictions voluntarily and retain Germany in the League, where any grievance could be discussed on terms of equality. France was not prepared to prevent re-armament by force, but wanted to use recognition of re-armament as a bargaining counter. The re-arming was only to go to a certain point, which would of course be fixed considerably short of the French military resources. Sir John Simon felt the force of the argument that this would be to consign the German Army to a position of permanent inferiority; and that the way to avoid that was for France to reduce her own forces to the same level. This the French Government has strenuously refused to do, and has gone so far as to regard the suggestion as a kind of treachery. In the course of the discussion the existence of the Locarno guarantee dropped into the background and disappeared from view. The present negotiations are really a kind of re-affirmation of a pledge which has always been regarded as binding by the British Government without any new declaration whatever. It is necessary to consider the Continental point of view as well as the Insular, and if in the course of years a Treaty drops out of memory there is no harm in underlining it.

The signature of a new pact will by no means get rid of the unreality of the whole business; for the fact is that no limitation of military airplanes is of any value whatever. A plane which can carry civilian passengers can carry soldiers just as easily. A plane which can carry mail bags can carry bombs up to the same weight. Attack is merely a question of dropping the bombs where they will do damage. And it is rather interesting that in a polite desire to avoid giving offence the practice required for effective bombing is called "dropping mail bags".

Sometimes one cannot but wonder who is supposed to be deceived by such very flimsy devices. It does certainly sound pacific and liberal for the Fuehrer to advocate the total abolition of "military" airplanes. Not only he, but any other Minister could agree to that proposition without affecting the

MR. KNOX'S FUTURE

Mr. Geoffrey now Sir Geoffrey Knox's job as President of the Saar Commission ended automatically with the handing over of the Saar territory to its new owners.

His future is now assured: Before returning to diplomacy he is due for a long period of leave. After that he should be fairly certain of the first vacant Legation.

As he began in the Consular service and is now only 50, he has made a good career.

DIPLOMATIC RECORD

At various times Mr. Knox has been described as a Scot, an Ulsterman, and an Australian.

He is an Australian and belongs to one of the best-known families in Sydney, where he was born. His uncle, the late Sir Adrian Knox, was Chief Justice of Australia and was left a fortune by "Baron" John Brown, the millionaire coal-owner and racing man.

Mr. Knox went to England as a boy and is to-day one of the five Australians in the British Diplomatic Service.

The other four are Mr. Allen Leeper, who is still gravely ill after his last operation, Mr. Rex Leeper, Mr. Arthur Yencken, once famous as a lawn-tennis player, and Mr. Peter Garran, who joined this year.

This record is the more remarkable because no other Dominion is represented in British diplomacy.

One way or the other, for all the German planes and most of the others have been built so that they can be converted to military uses, in an hour or so, just as the dye-works can be converted to be factories of poison gas. Education is the widespread nowadays for these rather clumsy devices for poisoning the public to have any other effect than the opposite of what is intended.

DEADLIEST ENEMY OF MAN WORLD-WIDE SCOURGE OF MALARIA

DESTRUCTION OF CARRIER THE ONLY REMEDY

(By a Medical Man)

SOME 30,000 people have already died in the epidemic of malaria that is still ravaging Ceylon. Out of a population of 5,300,000, no fewer than a million are said to have been infected.

It is thought that the severe drought of the summer was responsible for this calamity. The course of the rivers was slowed up. The pools remaining in the rocky and sandy beds formed ideal breeding places for the mosquito. With a swiftly flowing river many of the fragile mosquito larvae are swept away.

The tragedy is that the present epidemic was foreseen, but the State Council of Ceylon rejected a special malaria ordinance. Precious time was lost, and now the epidemic and the poverty and famine which will follow, will cost Ceylon many thousands of pounds that might have been saved.

Ravages Of Malaria

Malaria has caused more deaths and sickness than any other disease. Even Great Britain has not been free from it, and there exist to-day in England three species of the mosquito which is known to carry the germ of the illness.

The downfall of the ancient Greek civilisation has been laid at the door of the malarial parasite. With yellow fever it held up work on the Panama Canal until the heroic work of General Gorges and the expenditure of twenty million dollars on sanitation cleared the way for the engineers.

At the end of the war, as a result of the disorganisation of the health services, and of lack of funds and of quinine, the incidence of malaria increased throughout the world. In Russia it spread up to the shores of the Arctic, and in 1923 some six million persons were registered as infected.

In this year the Health Committee of the League of Nations appointed a Malaria Commission, for it was realised that the problem was an international one and could be tackled only on a world-wide scale.

Experts were dispatched to all parts of the globe. They found that in one year more than seven million people were being treated for malaria.

To meet the needs of patients in the 88 malarious countries it was estimated that 1887 metric tons of quinine were required. But the total consumption of quinine in these countries was found to fall short of 800 tons.

Life-Cycle Of Parasite

The discovery of the malarial parasite and of the method of infection in human beings is one of the most fascinating chapters in medical history.

This little one-celled animal, the most primitive of all forms of life, was first recognised in 1880 by the Frenchman Laveran. The famous English expert on tropical medicine, Sir Patrick Manson, conjectured that the parasite was conveyed to human beings by the bite of a mosquito.

This suggestion was taken up by Sir Ronald Ross, and the theory was established as fact. It was proved that the malarial parasite must live in the mosquito and in human blood in order to complete its life-cycle.

To prove the matter up to the hilt, a party of scientists in 1900 lived for three months in a mosquito-proof hut at Ostia in the Roman Campagna, where malaria was rife. The Italian peasants were heavily infected, but the inhabitants of the hut protected with fine wire gauze went spot free.

Not content with this, they fed mosquitoes on the blood of malaria patients in Rome and then sent the mosquitoes to London. On arrival, the mosquitoes were allowed to bite Dr. P. T. Manson and Mr. George Warren, who thereupon developed malarial fever, although neither of them had been out of England. The proof was positive.

I regret to say that it is the female mosquito that does all the biting.

No Specific Yet

Unfortunately the discovery of Manson and Ross has not led to the discovery of a cure for malaria, any more than the discovery of the tubercle bacillus has led to a cure for tuberculosis. Malaria is still as rife as ever it was.

The obvious thing to do, is to extirpate mosquitoes in malarious areas, but this is not so easy as it sounds. Like all flies, mosquitoes have a high birth rate. Fortunately, not all mosquitoes carry the malarial parasite: the anopheline mosquito is the offender. And not all anopheline mosquitoes convey malaria.

It was found, for example, in the Transvaal that out of the 25 species of anopheline mosquitoes resident there, only two were important sources of malaria. A concentrated attack on these two led to a heavy reduction in the incidence of malaria.

Attack The Carrier

Every conceivable method of attack has been tried on the mosquito. Aeroplanes have scattered a dust of Paris green—a compound of arsenic and copper—over marshland. Pools have been sprayed with kerosene to choke the air tubes of the mosquito-larva. Backwaters have been turned into swiftly flowing streams.

Malaria was wiped out from two islands in the Adriatic by introducing an American fish, which feeds on mosquito larvae.

The mosquito net and screening houses with wire gauze have been effective measures against the adult mosquito, for it chooses its victims when they are indoors. The mosquito is the enemy which has to be fought with renewed vigour.

Against the malarial parasite itself, drugs are in the long run of little avail. Quinine, which was introduced in the seventeenth century, is still the main standby. It is invaluable in an attack of fever. As a prophylactic its efficiency is in dispute.

Great hopes were raised when a drug called plasmodin was discovered a few years ago. It was the perfect prophylactic, out to be of any use. It had to be given in doses which were dangerous to the patient. About 1932 a new drug, atabrin, proved itself a valuable ally of quinine.

New drugs may yet be discovered, but the last word will always be with the anopheline mosquito, until we learn to control it.

WORLD CONGRESS OF PHYSIOLOGISTS

To Be Held In Russia
In August

Letters containing information on the World Congress of Physiologists to be held in Leningrad this August, according to the decision of the last convention held in Rome in 1932, have been mailed to the organisational committee headed by the Academician M.I.P. PERSIA'S DESIRE FOR A NEW NAME

To Be Known In Future As "Iran"

REASON FOR CHANGE GIVEN

The Persian Government has notified the Diplomatic Corps, in Teheran of its desire that the name of the country should from March 21 be described abroad as Iran, and not Persia, as the Western world has called it for at least 2,500 years.

The authorities of the Imperial Persian Government, having on geographical, historical and ethnological grounds found that the word Persia with its equivalents in other foreign languages is not an all-embracing word for the country of Iran, have after due consideration of the case decided to make efforts to have the word replaced by the country's historically correct name Iran.

With a view to giving universal publicity to this request the Imperial Government of Iran have instructed their representatives abroad to inform the Governments and public institutions of the countries to which they are accredited of this decision and request them to use the words Iran and Iranian whenever they have occasion to make references to the country of Iran and its people.

2,500 Years Old

The Government of Iran expect that the change will become universal not later than March 21, 1935, corresponding with the 1st, Farvardin, 1314, the beginning of the Iranian year. The Consulate-General trusts that the institutions and societies of India and the public in general will bear this change in mind and in future refer to Persia and Persian as Iran and Iranian.

The action of the Persian Government has a sound historical and geographical basis, though whether the word Iran will ever oust a name that has been in use among Western nations for 2,500 years is perhaps doubtful.

The word Persia comes to us from the ancient Greeks, who called the country Persis and the inhabitants Persians, as the first Persians with whom they came in contact were the inhabitants of the western province of Fars, which contained the capital of a great King known to Greek historians as Persepolis.

Arabs' Version

Even at that time, however, the whole country was called by its inhabitants Iran and the name has persisted to this day and is, incidentally, the word for "country" in the Urdu and Hindi languages.

When the Arabic invasions occurred the province became known as Fars, the Arabs having no word in their language corresponding to the sound "Peh" and as such it is to be found on the maps of the Western world to-day, its capital being the city of Shiraz famous for its men of letters. It is understood that the Government of India has not yet received official intimation of the change.

FOR STAMP COLLECTORS

Hawaiian Rarity Causes Speculation: Obsolete Colonials Withdrawn

By A. E. L.

ONE of the world's greatest rarities is the first 2 cents stamp of Hawaii, which is catalogued by Gibbons at $5,500 unused, or $4,500 used. Although the catalogue illustration purposely differs in certain essentials from the original stamp, the mail gives us that a forgery of this stamp, after being offered from different parts of Europe in the past, has appeared in London. Whether this particular stamp has ever changed hands as genuine cannot be said, but collectors would generally be too wise to trust to their own judgment in purchasing such a rarity. In any case a stamp such as this would be of no value unless certified as genuine by a recognized expert committee.

It is announced that the obsolete issues of British Guiana and also Granada (except the 10s. value) have been withdrawn for the purpose of destruction. There is no 10s. denomination in the new Granada set, and the old stamp is presumably to be kept on hand to meet requirements, which are mainly fiscal.

THE St. Helena Post Office notifies that the centenary issues, will be withdrawn from use.

To-day's Short Story.

Mr. Magee's Sweet Tooth

By Jasper Power

MISS Quince was hanging out coconuts for the tits when the telegraph-boy propped his bicycle against the gate and plodded noisily up the gravel drive. At once she began to whimper apprehensively, for the arrival of telegrams in Lower Mickleham usually fore-shadowed black-edged stationery and the reappearance of sombre garments redolent of moth-balls.

When she had deciphered the pencilled message, Miss Quince broke down and wept in earnest. Any right-minded spinster would have done the same, blood being of a higher specific gravity than water and kind hearts of greater ultimate value than the metal headgear of the peerage.

The telegram had been handed in at Tilbury, and ran as follows:—
"Married this morning stop sail to-day as nimble stop tea-planting assam stop loving nephew donald stop."

Drying her eyes, Miss Quince thought how careless it was of Donald not to mention the name of his bride. How little he had changed: last time she had seen him he had carelessly sat on the cucumber-frame and fallen right through.

But she did wish that she had known in time to send the young people some little present—a vacuum cleaner, perhaps, or a black marble clock. That, unfortunately, was now impossible, for Miss Quince knew what the doctor's sister had suffered from those awful Customs, and that only about a pair of shoes which she really had worn the day before she left Paris.

But trust the quick wits of a woman. Suddenly there crept over her face an expression of furtive cunning like that of a saint cheating himself at patience. Oblivious of the assembled long-tailed tits now cheeping impatiently for their customary free lunch, Miss Quince hastened to her spacious kitchen, her voice rising as nearly to a shout as is possible for a gentlewoman on the committee of thirteen local charities. The cook pushed her crossword puzzle into a drawer, and stood up respectfully.

$50 MONTHLY OVER-RULED. This rules out the limit of $50 monthly provided for in the original bill.

Before the vote a letter was read from President Roosevelt stating that the existing wages would be protected in administering the bill. During the debate Senator Carter Glass said he had good reason to believe that the President would veto the $4,830,000,000 bill if it reached him containing the prevailing wage amendment.

The Administration contend that the prevailing wage amendment included in the bill, the emergency work programmes will become too costly and the whole relief scheme will collapse.

Ten minutes later they were walking very quickly along Caliph Ismail Street in the gathering dusk, vainly trying to shake off the maimed, halt, and blind lying in wait for tea-planters who have not yet planted tea. A long descriptive account of what they saw that night went home by the next mail, but that has nothing to do with this story. Urged on by fate and the original sin, Apostolides Magee henceforth dominates the scene.

Mr. Magee was a pock-marked Cypriot with Turkish tendencies and Levantine leanings, nicely blended with an Abyssinian bias and sympathy for the Greeks. There was no question of his Cypriot origin, for that was on the distaff side; and a certain genealogical pride had enabled him to narrow down his possible sires to the nationalities mentioned. Magee had simply adopted in the days when he had peddled Turkish de-light from his own bumbast, finding Europeans dealt with those whose names they could pronounce. That, however, was long ago, before his light-angled activities had driven even the tolerant Egyptian police to warn him off the Canal.

Of late, he said, there had been not disarmament, but increases of armaments on the part of Japan, Russia, United States and other nations. And among countries that were rearming was Germany. The only disarmament that will last is disarmament that is freely agreed upon, and in order to bring about an agreement about armaments it is absolutely necessary to increase the sense of security."

George M. Cohan, beloved of theatre audiences, is coming shortly to the King's Theatre in a film version of his own mystery melodrama, "Gambling."

But Mr. Magee was not thus lightly to be balked of his business career. With praiseworthy ingenuity he perfected a new technique, which, although it involved the drawback of frequently getting wet all over, had proved so far not unprofitable. His apparatus consisted of a plank and a rope with a hook at the end, which were easy to acquire and to replace. Armed with these, he betook himself to the eastern bank of the Canal as usual the very evening Miss Quince's nephew first confronted Islam in the lounge of the hotel. He sat there scratching himself until it grew reasonably dark.

Then Apostolides pushed his plank into the water, lay on it, and paddled off gently to the old Nimtollah. He noted with approbation that the port side of the vessel was deserted. Mr. Magee did not mind being kicked by a quartermaster in white canvas shoes, but now and then they affected heavy hob-nailed boots unpleasant to the base of the spine. When his fingernails scraped the iron of the ship's plates, he deftly secured one end of his rope about the plank, and flung the hooked end up towards the deck. At the third attempt the hook caught over the rail, with a faint clink, whereat Mr. Magee braced his feet against the vessel's side and walked up with the easy grace of a professional acrobat.

Once on board, the visitor set to work with quiet thoroughness, moving from cabin to cabin like a district visitor in a slum street. Round his waist was slung a string bag of the type employed by charwomen for the transportation of onions, or pearl divers for the taciurn oyster, and into this Mr. Magee bundled cameras, binoculars, silver-backed hairbrushes, and whatever else took his catholic fancy.

In Cabin 28 A he found a large cake, partly unwrapped, and sampled it cautiously. Judged by Port Said standards it was an excellent cake, being of a sickly sweetness and twice as sticky as flypaper.

Apostolides sampled it again, then weighed it thoughtfully in his hands. At least ten pounds, it would make a difference, even on the plank, but, on the other hand, it would require not less than three days to eat it. Mr. Magee stowed it tenderly in the string bag.

"Hey, Yarrub, imshi," roared a fierce voice as Apostolides stepped over the rail, and a red-faced quartermaster thundered along the plank deck, brandishing a mop. Uttering a derisive hoot, Mr. Magee slid hard for freedom, but that hoot was premature. Before he was halfway down his pursuer had jerked out a sheath knife and slashed through the rope. Apostolides of Magee entered the water with a resounding splash, and sank like a marble tombstone. For some time the quartermaster stared over the side, muttering to himself that these Arabs would steal the milk out of yer tea, then hurried off to inform the mate. The mate said those Arabs could swim like seals, swore a bit, and settled down to write a report. Six hours later the Nimtollah was on her way to Suez.

The Iceland Dawn followed the Nimtollah to the buoy, and for perfectly good maritime reasons had out her starboard anchor on short cable. As she was heaving in the cable, a man who was playing the hose on the ooze-coated anchor suddenly bellowed: "Stiff on the fluke, sir."

"Tip him off," said the chief officer very sensibly. "The owners forgot to put a morgue aboard the Iceland Dawn, she not being a Western Ocean boat. Capsize him him into the ditch."

"He's fast by something lashed round his waist, sir," announced the A.B., who had climbed over the bow on a heaving line. "I'll soon cut him adrift.... there, he's gone now." Panting a little, he reappeared on the forecastle head.

"I reckon it was this towed him down to Davy's locker," he volunteered, holding up a bulging string bag. "There's cameras in it, sir, and glasses and fancy hairbrushes, and I'm banjaxed if there isn't a great cake. Big enough to feed all hands and his blinkin' brother."

"Shake em out on deck, and we'll have a dekko at them," ordered the mate with growing interest. The sudden cake flopped heavily on deck, where it promptly fell to pieces, disclosing to view a handsome aneroid barometer, mounted on mahogany backing.

There was a label attached: "With all best wishes from Auntie Charlotte. I hope you will both find this useful."

The chief officer noted with professional interest that the instrument registered Very Dry.

THE END.

GANGES CHANGES ITS COURSE

Washes Away Portion Of A Pier

A somewhat sudden change in the flow of the Ganges washed away a portion of a pier erected for the convenience of pilgrims to the Magh Mela. The remaining portion is now being dismantled as the Magh Mela authorities now think they will be able to provide much better bathing facilities on February 8 (the next important bathing day) than was available heretofore.

MARINES TO GUARD THE PALACE

First Time In History

For the first time in the 275 years' history the Royal Marines will this autumn mount guard over the King's Palaces in London.

His Majesty has approved the selection of this corps to relieve the Guards Brigade.

The Marines, under the command of Lt.-Col. T. L. Hunton of the Chatham Division, will be drawn from the three divisions of the corps at Chatham, Portsmouth and Plymouth.

Officially the guard duties are known as "public duties" and include guarding Buckingham Palace, St. James's, and the Bank of England.

EXPENSIVE NIGHTINGALE

A Japanese nightingale owned by a resident of Osaka has been sold, it is reported, for ¥10,000. The bird, which is famous among the fancy, is named "Hagoromo," or "cloak of feathers."

TWO SHIPS, BUT ONLY ONE WHARF

Compromise Finally Effected

DIFFICULTY AT DARWIN

An unusual problem arose at Darwin jetty when the Western Australian motor-ship Koolinda arrived in port. The Shell Co.'s tanker Volsella was already berthed at the jetty, discharging petrol and kerosene in cases and drums. The Koolinda wished to berth at the jetty, discharge her cargo, and leave again at 8 p.m. the same day, for Wyndham and Broome. It was necessary for the Koolinda to leave, or otherwise she would not be able to catch the tides at Wyndham and Broome to berth at those ports.

The master of the Volsella would not move his vessel, and continued to discharge cargo, because to move from the berth would mean extra wages in overtime for wharf-labourers during the week-end. Conferences were arranged, and eventually the masters reached an agreement, and the Volsella stopped work and moved to the end of the jetty. The Koolinda moved in and took her place, work commencing immediately.

By this time it was 2.30 p.m., the Koolinda having remained in the harbour since 8 a.m. Mails and passengers had been taken off in the ship's boats.

WIDOW VANISHES IN MID-OCEAN

Mystery On Liner In Mid-Atlantic

NO MESSAGE OR CLUE FOUND

With no clue but the open port-hole of her cabin to suggest her fate, an attractive young French governess, Mme. Marguerite Pauli, vanished in mid-Atlantic from the Cunard-White Star liner Berengaria.

Mme. Pauli, a 34-year-old widow, smart and well-educated, spoke English, French, and German fluently.

When she boarded the Berengaria she was accompanied by two women friends who saw her off. She was carrying a large bunch of flowers in her arms and seemed exceedingly happy.

No Message

It is understood that she had been in the employ of an American family and was returning home to see her mother in France.

Mme. Pauli entered thoroughly into the ship's social activities throughout the day of the tragedy, and after dinner she retired to her cabin.

That was the last seen or heard of her.

The next morning she had vanished. Officials who forced her cabin door found no message.

THREE CHINESE IN PIRATES' HANDS

Exorbitant Ransom Demands

RELATIVES WILL TAKE NO FURTHER ACTION

Hopes for the release of three kidnapped Chinese in the hands of pirates through the payment of ransom money has been definitely abandoned by the captives' relatives.

The three Chinese were kidnapped on board the s.s. Kaho by pirates some time ago. Negotiations for their release were conducted with the representatives of the pirates three times, but because of the pirates' exorbitant demands for ransom money, the negotiations all ended in failure.

The captives' relatives are now reported in Chinese circles to have definitely decided to conduct no further talks regarding ransom because it is absolutely impossible for them to comply with the pirates' demands.

NEW LINER FOR THE ORIENT

"Strathmore" Nearing Completion

BIGGEST VESSEL EVER BUILT
FOR P. & O. COMPANY

A notable addition has been made to the fine fleet of P. & O. liners on the Europe-India service.

It is the Strathmore, named after the Earl of Strathmore, and his daughter, the Duchess of York, will christen it.

The name signifies "The Great Glen," and, it is officially stated, will be specially appropriate to the Strathmore as she will be the largest of the three P. & O. "Straths."

The ships already in service are the Strathnaver and Strathaird.
The launch is to take place at 11.15 a.m. on April 4 from the yard of Vickers-Armstrongs, Limited, at Barrow-in-Furness.

SAFE AS A HOUSE

The Strathmore, of about 24,000 tons gross, will be the largest ship laid down for the P. & O. during the 100 years which have elapsed since the date of the company's origin, and she will be the largest and fastest vessel ever built for the Europe-India service.

She will be fitted with the latest appliances for safety at sea, including a gyro compass, and a system of air-conditioning regulating the temperature and humidity in the first-class dining saloon.

The sprinkler system of automatic fire extinction will be installed, and fire-resisting paint will be used throughout the accommodation for passengers and crew.

BRITISH CAPTAIN'S TRAIN EXPLOIT

Holds Up A Thief With Revolver

ARREST LEADS TO BIG DRUG TRAFFIC CASE

An English sea captain named Glanville has played a part in the break up of what the police claim to be an international opium gang. Several arrests, including that of a woman, have been made and more are expected.

Capt. Glanville was travelling by night from Dieppe to Paris.
At three o'clock in the morning the communication cord of the train was pulled, and officials found him covering with a revolver a man whose acquaintance he had made on the journey.

He said he had found the man, who had given himself out to be an Australian practising bookmaking in London, rifling his suitcase.

Police inquiries led them to a pretty villa hidden behind trees
—the Maison Rouge, at Cor-meilles, near Paris. They became satisfied that the tenants of this residence, who frequently made international journeys, were concerned in the drug traffic, and they arrested a man named MacCord and a woman, Mary Pearson, a Canadian, who acted as housekeeper at the Maison Rouge.

The arrest of Clarence Frechette (right) at Nevada City, Calif., resulted in the discovery of the body of Robert Brown of Kalamazoo, Mich., in the trunk of a car. Riding with Frechette as "hitch-hikers" were Mrs. Victor Messenger and her four-year-old son who were unaware of the grisly contents of the trunk. Mrs. Messenger fainted when the police informed her of their find. Frechette is said to have confessed to the killing of Brown in Kalamazoo.

LEE TIN SANG SUSPENDED AND A. V. GOSANO SEVERELY CENSURED

Gosano has never come before the Emergency Committee before, this being his first offence, if his action can be called such.

At the first inquiry, the circumstances surrounding the incident were referred to be in a threatening pose and facing Fung King-cheng.

Although Gosano did not strike Fung King-cheng, his action was such as to suggest that he was about to do so, and the referee acted in accordance with his instructions.

Lee Tin-sang was concerned in an incident with B. Gosano during an Association attack on the Chinese citadel, when he was seen deliberately striking Gosano.

The referee's report was clear and concise and the Committee had no other alternative but to order one month's suspension with effect from midnight on March 15 until midnight on April 14.

PHILIPPINES AND FORMOSA TO CLASH IN AQUATIC MEET

The Formosa team, according to advance information, will be composed of 13 men and one coach.

The P.I.-Formosa dual swimming meet started in 1929. The first meet was held in Manila and was won by the Philippines. In 1931, the Philippines again won the meet held at Taihoku. In 1933 the For-mosans came to Manila and scored their first victory in the biennial meet.

The following is the tentative programme of events arranged by the P.A.A.F. for the meeting in August:

MEN
1st day—100-meter free style; 400-meter back stroke; 100-meter breast stroke; 800-meter relay.

2nd day—400-meter free style; 200-
meter back stroke; 200-meter breast
stroke; 400-meter relay.

3rd day—1500-meter free style; 100-meter back stroke; 400-meter breast stroke; 300-meter medley relay.

WOMEN
1st day—100-meter free style, trials;
400-meter free style, final.

2nd day—100-meter free style, final;
200-meter breast stroke, trials; 100-meter back stroke, final; 200-meter breast stroke, final; 400-meter relay, final.

TENNIS LEAGUE IN UNITED STATES

At the present time O'Brien ranks Tilden, Lott, Vines, Stoefer, Nusslein, Cechet, Flax and Richards as the eight best professionals in the world. If Fred Perry of England turns professional as expected next year, he will be included in the class A group, and one player dropped to the Class B ranks.

Each match will consist of two singles and one doubles engagement each day, according to present plans.

POPULARIZING TENNIS
"I expect we'll lose money the first year," said O'Brien, "but we will pay the foundation for popularizing tennis with the masses.
Already we have done much to make the public tennis conscious with the winter tours. The main objection to tours of the kind we are on now is that they don't mean anything, whoever wins the match.
A league would give the players
more incentive for victory."

PLAYER'S SALARY LIMIT
O'Brien said the first year a player's salary limit of $200 a week will be imposed to keep some of the club owners from making the mistake the Federal baseball league made when they started with wild bidding for the best players.

That the country is ready for professional tennis is proved by the success of the winter tours the past few years. This year's tour already has drawn over $80,000 in 12 engagements since it started in New York Jan. 9. Last year Vines and Tilden and two minor players drew over $200,000 from Jan. 10 to May 9.

SUFFOLK IN MAMAK GAME

Fincher's distribution was outstanding, but his play was inclined to be slow, causing him to outposition himself several occasions.

For the opposing team, Phillips,
at left-back played a round game, breaking up most of the attempts of the opposing forwards with strong clearances. His partner, Stacey, also played a sound game,
but was slow.

The halves played well together,
Smith, right-half and Campbell, centre-half combining brilliantly.
The former player was conspicuous for his reverse stick work.

In the forward line O'Neill, right-wing, Fullmar, inside-right, and Holmes, inside-left, all played well.

It was not until 15 minutes that the Suffolk scored their first goal through Kirk. The Saints equalised shortly afterwards through Carroll, and Fincher soon placed them in the lead.

Kirk made the score 2-1, but just before the interval Billas not-ted with a hard drive from the circle's edge after a spectacular solo run.

NANKING'S VETO ON SOUTHERN ANTI RED DRIVE

Lieut.-General Wu Fei, liaison officer for the Second Route (Nanking) Army of the anti-Communist force, stated on Thursday night that Tsunyi, so-called Communist capital in Northern Kweichow, was re-captured on March 12 by the Government forces under General Wu Chi-wei. Tsunyi had been in the hands of the Reds since February.

All the Communist units are attempting to mass in Western Kweichow and Eastern Hunan in preparation for another drive into Szechuen. Although Nanking planes are daily raining bombs on the Reds, the latter are taking cover in the mountains and are not suffering many casualties.

George Headley (132) and Ben Sealey (60) continued their third wicket partnership of 143 in glorious weather and on a perfect wicket and added 59 before Sealey was beaten by one of Paine's spinners when 91. The partnership added 202 runs.

CONSTANTINE HITS OUT
 Len Constantine, however, stepped into the breach, and, with orders to score fast, he rattled up 34 out of 58 before stepping in front of straight one from Paine. The tourists then secured two quick wickets for 29 runs.

Rolfe Grant, brother of the home skipper, however, dispelled all doubts of a collapse when he joined Headley in a big seventh wicket stand that resulted in the addition of 147 runs of which Grant claimed 77.

Having bettered the previous West Indian Test record aggregate of 471, scored at Georgetown in 1930, George Grant applied the closure at 555 for 7, giving the tourists little over an hour's play before stumps were drawn.

BRILLIANT HEADLEY
 Headley played brilliant cricket for his 270 not out, which bettered his own West Indian Test score record of 223, scored on the same ground in the 1930 series. Andy Sandham's 325 in the same game stands as the English record.

Hitting 30 boundaries in a stay of 493 minutes, Headley scored all round the wicket with effortless ease, displaying a refreshing variety of strokes. He registered 176, at Barbados in 1930, in his first Test against England.

The tourists commenced disastrously, losing Wyatt in the first over as the result of an injury, and never recovered against the "shock" attack of Martindale and Constantine.

CANTON-HANKOW RAILWAY
Work Of Construction Proceeding

Canton, To-day.
 The joint conference of the Canton-Shiukwan, Chuchow-Shiukwan, and Hupei-Hunan sections of the Canton-Hankow began at 9 o'clock yesterday morning at the Huangsha office.

The conference will last for four days. A preparatory meeting was held yesterday and business meetings will begin from to-day.

According to the South Section Administration of the Railway, the section from Lokchang and Lochatu has been completed. Actual service will probably be started early next month. The work of construction of other sections, such as those from Lochatu to Shiutwung, from Shiutwung to Kungpingshu, from Kungpingshu to Kwooninchiu, and from Kwooninchiu to Chuchow, is now fast proceeding. It is expected to be completed very soon. — Central Press.

Nearing the South Gate of the Walled City, he was tackled round the legs by a Chinese male who took him unawares from behind, and, before he could shout for help, three others armed with short hammers bent him to insensibility.

He regained consciousness to discover that the men had made off with his canvas waist supporter which contained $44 in notes and cash.

THEFTS REPORTED ON TILAWA

Mr. W. G. Amy, Chief Officer of the s.s. Tilawa, reports that between 1.30 and 2.30 p.m. yesterday, someone entered his cabin with a duplicate key and removed a watch, valued at $20, and $70 in Singapore currency from his cabin drawer.

Mr. Taylor, the wireless operator, reports that someone entered his cabin the same way and removed 12 Indian rupees, valued at $8.50, while Mr. West, the Second Officer, was similarly robbed of $20 in Hong Kong currency and an English 6-shilling piece.

U.S. ADMIRAL TO PAY VISIT TO CANTON

American consular officials and leading members of the American community are busy making preparations to welcome the Admiral who will visit Canton for the first time prior to relinquishing the Far Eastern Command.

A reception will be held at the American consulate-general in Shamen on Tuesday.

The forthcoming marriage is announced of Mr. Nicolas Poutama, merchant, of House No. 66, No. 1622, Building Well Road, Shanghai, and Miss Marion Calhoun Kennedy, teacher, of the same address.
